This year the Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime will celebrate its twenty-eighth year. It is a testament to the Symposium’s unique blend of relevance, practicality and topicality that over the years it has enjoyed the support of so many institutions and experts around the world. It also attests to the deep concern of governments and financial and other institutions as to the extent of the risks to stability and security thrown up by economic crime and in particular organised crime. The annual Cambridge Symposium is a truly unique event which over the years has made an unrivalled contribution to understanding the real issues involved in preventing and controlling economically motivated serious crime. As a respected and trusted international forum and network it has also made an impressive and meaningful contribution to fostering international co-operation and promoting mutual understanding and goodwill.

The Twenty-Eighth programme is set in the context of one of the most serious financial crises that the world has had to face. Obviously the situation is not the result of a single or even predominate cause. However, it is obvious that abusive dealings, self-interest and worse have exacerbated the problems which have been compounded by inefficient supervision and control. Whilst the clamour for accountability may in many instances be too late, an increase in regulatory and enforcement activity is inevitable. As in the 1930s politicians talk in terms of a ‘New Deal’ under which obligations of stewardship over other people’s wealth will be emphasised and enforced. Consequently the new regulatory systems that will be brought into operation, both domestically and internationally will inevitably place much greater emphasis on ensuring integrity and sanctioning those who abuse their positions of trust. This has implications for us all.

The Symposium brings together in one of the oldest medieval Colleges within the University of Cambridge, ministers, legislators, senior officials, diplomats, judges, regulators, law enforcement, intelligence and security officers, financial intermediaries, bankers, professional advisers, compliance and risk officers and scholars from around the world. Last year the symposium attracted well over 1,000 participants from over 90 countries.

The Twenty-Eighth Symposium will focus on the threats confronting the financial system and in particular financial institutions from those who engage in self-dealing, corrupt practices and fraud or who assist and facilitate the crimes of others. Such threats, however, are complex and manifest themselves at many different levels. For example, as in previous years, considerable emphasis is placed on the problems that confront those who operate in the financial world, primarily as result of regulatory and enforcement actions designed to address specific criminal issues – such as the disruption of highly profitable crime or terrorism. Our programme is designed by those working in enforcement, compliance and the financial sector with the deliberate intention of focussing on real issues and providing, at a truly international level, if not answers – better approaches and greater co-operation. In the result the programme provides a unique opportunity at a very practical level, to share the experiences of over 350 specialist speakers and panellists in the prevention and control of risk to the integrity and stability of the financial system.

The programme is structured to provide a depth and breadth of opportunity - second to none, for those participating in the programme to become aware not only of existing, but also new threats, and how best to address them. Through the numerous plenary and other workshops and in particular the considerable opportunities to meet colleagues socially, there is a degree of inter-action and collaboration that could only be encountered in an institution that has the highest world reputation for learning and research. The University of Cambridge collaborating with a host of distinguished institutions throughout the world offers a wholly different experience in addressing these fundamentally important issues.

The Cambridge Symposium is not and has never been just a conference. It is organised on a non-profit making basis by some of the world’s most respected academic and research institutions with the active involvement and support of numerous governmental and inter-governmental organisations. It was established twenty-eight years ago to promote meaningful international co-operation – in the fight against financial crime. Its record is its best testimonial. Successive symposia have made a real contribution – at all levels, to promoting stability, good governance and the disruption and control of serious crime and terror. Those who are concerned to protect and promote the integrity and wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise – or who are concerned to better understand the risks facing business today, cannot afford to miss this very special event.

Workshops

Participation in the non-plenary workshops will be restricted so as to facilitate informal discussion. Registration for workshops will be on a first come basis. The convenors for each workshop are indicated in the programme, but discussion will be open to all those participating.
Principal Organising Institutions

Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

Jesus College was founded as a college, within the University of Cambridge, in 1496 by Bishop Alcock of Ely. The history of the College is, however, rather more ancient. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least two hundred and fifty years before this. Since the inception of the annual Cambridge Symposium, twenty-eight years ago by Professor Barry Rider, the Master and Fellows of the College have been pleased to host the event and the College administers all financial matters pertaining to the programme.

The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209 so the University has just celebrated its 800th anniversary. The University consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools has a deserved international reputation for excellence. A number of the University’s centres and programmes are involved in supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium on Economic Crime.

The Centre for International Documentation on Economic and Organised Crime (CIDOEC)
CIDOEC was established as a non-profit making organisation in 1988 to promote collaborative and comparative research in the prevention and control of organised and economic crime. It is based in Cambridge, although it has branches in southern Africa, North America, Latin America and the Far East. The Chairman of CIDOEC’s Advisory Board is Mr Saul M Froomkin QC, a former Attorney General of Bermuda.

The Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the Society for Advanced Legal Studies
The IALS was established in 1947 and is a constituent member of the School for Advanced Study of the University of London. Although part of the University of London, the Institute’s role is national, and is funded by government on this basis. Its library is the national law library and the Institute's research staff is concerned with promoting and conducting research across a broad spectrum of legal and related issues. The Institute’s Advisory Council is chaired by The Rt Hon The Lord Hope of Craighead, Lord of Appeal in Ordinary.

The International Association of Anti-Corruption Authorities
The IAACA was established by resolution of a number of governments at a meeting hosted by the Prosecutor General of China in Beijing in October 2006. The primary objective of the IAACA is to facilitate the effective implementation of the UN Convention against Corruption and assist governments generally in fighting corruption and corruption related crime. The IAACA’s Secretary General is Dr Ye Feng of the Supreme People’s Procuratorate of China.

Principal Sponsors

Serious Fraud Office of England and Wales
The Serious Fraud Office is an independent government department with jurisdiction in England and Wales. Its mission is to protect society from serious economic crime. It does this through a combination of investigation, prosecution or civil disposal, disruption and education. The SFO works in partnership nationally and internationally with the law enforcement community to chase down and address serious economic crime and so get justice for victims and maintain confidence in the UK’s business and financial institutions.

The People’s Bank of China
The People’s Bank of China (PBC) was established on December 1, 1948 and is China’s central bank. The Law of the PRC adopted by the 10th National People’s Congress on December 27, 2003, provides that the PBC among other duties is responsible for drafting and enforcing relevant laws relating to its functions; formulating and implementing monetary policy; regulating financial markets, including the inter-bank lending market; preventing and mitigating systemic financial risks to safeguard financial stability and providing guidance in regard to the control of money laundering in financial sector and maintaining an FIU.

A complete list of all the organisations around the world supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium is to be found on page 2 of this programme
