THIRTY-FIFTH INTERNATIONAL SYMPOSIUM ON ECONOMIC CRIME

SUNDAY 3rd SEPTEMBER - SUNDAY 10th SEPTEMBER 2017
JESUS COLLEGE, UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

PREVENTING AND CONTROLLING ECONOMIC CRIME IN THE MODERN WORLD
– whose responsibility and are they really up to it?
The 35th Cambridge International Symposium on Economic Crime

Preventing and controlling economic crime in the modern world – whose responsibility and are they really up to it?

The thirty-fifth international symposium on economic crime is the most extensive and ambitious programme that we have so far attempted. The over-arching theme is simply who is responsible for protecting us from economic crime and are they up to this important task? If not, then how can we assist them to do a better job – for all our sakes!

These vital issues are pursued in a practical, applied and relevant manner, by those who with the benefit of experience are best placed to do so. The symposium, although held in one of the world’s leading universities and recognising the significance of intelligent deliberation, is not a talking shop for those with vested interests – official or commercial. We strive to offer a rich and deep analysis of the real issues and in particular threats to our institutions and economies presented by economically motivated crime and misconduct. We are also equally concerned to offer and assist in developing if not solutions at least better practices based on real experience and application. Therefore, well over 600 experts from around the world will share their experience and knowledge with other participants drawn from policy makers, law enforcement, compliance, regulation, business and the professions. The programme is drawn up with the support of a great number of agencies and organisations throughout the world and the Organising Institutions and principal sponsors greatly value this global commitment.

In considering how to better discourage and control economic crime we examine the real threats facing our economies and in particular those who look after other people’s wealth not just from criminals and terrorists, but also indirectly as a result of law enforcement and regulatory intervention. We also context these risks and the responses not only in terms of the law, but also regulation and especially compliance practice. Therefore in every specialist panel or workshop there is an array of relevant practical experience and expertise.

In recent years the symposium has attracted well over 1,800 participants from over 90 countries. This year will be no different, although we are privileged to with the support of China be able to give a special focus in some parts of the programme on its particular circumstances and the impact on the rest of us. As in previous symposia we do not focus on a single – no matter how important issue. Just spend a few minutes to look through the 35th Symposium programme, I am confident that you will be impressed by its depth, breadth and relevance. The symposium is not an ordinary conference. It was conceived to fulfil a very practical purpose - to promote understanding of the real issues in controlling economically motivated crime and facilitate co-operation and effective action, ideally preventive. Consequently, we make every effort to foster networking and promoting meaningful co-operation.

The annual symposium over the last thirty-five years has brought together in one of the oldest medieval Colleges of the University of Cambridge, ministers, legislators, senior officials, diplomats, judges, regulators, law enforcement, intelligence and security officers, financial intermediaries, bankers, professional advisers, compliance and risk officers and researchers from around the world. This programme is structured to provide a depth and breadth of opportunity - second to none, for those participating in the symposium to become aware not only of existing, but also new threats, and how best to address them.

The Cambridge Symposium is not and has never been just a conference. It is organised on a non-profit making basis by some of the world’s most respected academic and research institutions with the active involvement and support of numerous governmental and inter-governmental organisations. Those who are concerned to protect and promote the integrity and wellbeing of their national economy, institution or enterprise – or who are concerned to better understand the risks facing business today, cannot afford to miss this very special event.

UNIVERSITY OF CAMBRIDGE

Jesus College, Cambridge and the University of Cambridge

Jesus College was founded as a college, within the University of Cambridge, in 1496 by Bishop Alcock of Ely. The history of the College is, however, rather more ancient. An order of nuns occupied the site and buildings for at least two hundred and fifty years before this. Since the inception of the annual Cambridge Symposium, thirty-five years ago by Professor Barry Rider, the Master and Fellows of the College have been pleased to host the event and the College administers all financial matters pertaining to the programme.

The earliest record of the University of Cambridge is in 1209 so the University has recently celebrated its 800th anniversary. The University, consisting of over 100 departments, faculties and schools, is rated as the world’s foremost research university. A number of the University’s centres and programmes are involved in supporting the annual Cambridge Symposium on Economic Crime.
The Centre for International Documentation on Organised and Economic Crime (CIDOEC)

CIDOEC was established as a non-profit making organisation and network in 1988 to promote collaborative and comparative research in the prevention and control of organised and economic crime. It is based in Cambridge, although it has branches in southern Africa, North America, Latin America and the Far East. The Chairman of CIDOEC's Advisory Board is Mr Saul M Froomkin QC, OBE, a former Attorney General of Bermuda. The Journal of Financial Crime and the Journal of Money Laundering Control are published by Emerald Group Publishing Limited under the auspices of CIDOEC.

The Institute of Advanced Legal Studies and the Society for Advanced Legal Studies

The IALS was established in 1947 and is a constituent member of the School for Advanced Study of the University of London. Although part of the University of London, the Institute's role is national, and is funded by government on this basis. Its library is the national law library and the Institute's research staff are concerned with promoting and conducting research across a broad spectrum of legal and related issues.

National Crime Agency

The NCA leads, supports and co-ordinates the response against serious and organised crime affecting the UK with a national and international reach and the mandate and powers to work in partnership with other law enforcement organisations. It incorporates a number of commands including the Economic Crime Command and the National Cyber Crime Unit. The commands are supported by a central Intelligence Hub. The Economic Crime Command is tasked with leading and co-ordinating the response to economic crime affecting the U.K., including amongst others: fraud; cyber-enabled fraud; bribery and corruption; intellectual property crime and market abuse.

City of London Police

The City of London’s Police are entrusted as the National Lead Force for fraud on behalf of the UK Police Service. They lead the police service fight against fraud and economic crime.

The Serious Fraud Office of England, Wales and Northern Ireland

The Serious Fraud Office is an independent government department, operating under the superintendence of the Attorney General. Its purpose is to protect society by investigating and, if appropriate, prosecuting those who commit serious or complex fraud, bribery and corruption and pursuing them and others for the proceeds of their crime. Its Director is David Green CB QC.
